What do consumers do with the photos they capture?

According to ezprints Consumer Survey, over 40% of consumers capture 100-300 photos a month. 45% of consumers share pictures on Facebook, with women uploading twice as many photos as men. 80% store photos on their computers.

What kind of photos do consumers use to create custom gadget cases?

Case-Mate research shows that over 28% of respondents used photos of family, about 20% used pet photos. About 15% used personal creations or designer art. Customers also used scenery, logos and vacation photos to create custom cases.

Consumer reviews of custom gadget cases indicate the importance and role of uniqueness and personalization when it comes to accessorizing gadgets. Custom cases, besides protecting customers' gadgets, also give them an opportunity to flaunt their personality and make a casual, yet boldly creative statement. In 2011, Case-Mate cases featuring William and Kate, for instance, were among the more sought after Royal Wedding souvenirs.

Across product categories, consumers rate print quality, product quality, affordability, durability of product, variety and design selection among the most important criteria for choosing personalized products. ezprints surpasses benchmarks on all these factors and has been exceeding lead conversion expectations over the past few years.
